Abstract

Dynamics of ion-acoustic wave (IAW) are observed in a magnetized collisional four-component dusty plasma comprising cold ions, inertialess two-temperature electrons, and immobile negatively charged dust grains. Employing the reductive perturbation technique (RPT), the damped forced modified Zakharov-Kuznetsov (DFMZK) equation is derived and assuming that the conservation principle holds in the system, an approximate analytical solution of the DFMZK equation is obtained; however, the solution is valid for
