Meeting details: BHASHKAR SARKAR is presenting

- He is known for his studies on the controversial science of (ranking the races from northwest Europeans at the top Africans at the bottom), Environmental determinism/climate determinism, economic growth and economic geography.
- He stressed the importance of climate determinism. In his book exploration in Turkestan in 1905 and The Pulse Of Asia (1907), he attempted to correlate the periods of drought with historical dates.
- He concluded that the migration of nomadic peoples from central Asia, which led to the Mongal conquests of India and China and the invasions of Eastern Europe in the thirteenth century, could be explained by the Drying up of the pastures on which the nomads were dependent.
- His second book Civilization and Climate he formulated in the book is that man's civilisations could only develop in regions of stimulating climate.
- Huntington's pragmatic determinism appears to be very much in line with G. Taylor's 'stop - and - go - determinism' and V. Anuchin's 'neo - determinism'.

NUPUR SINHA is presenting

By theorem 2.11 sylow-subgroup is cyclic. So it has 10 elements of order 11. Thus the group G has 120 elements of order 11. Now order of 3 sylow-subgroup is 3. By theorem 2.3 sylow-subgroup is cyclic. So it has 2 elements of order 3. Thus group G has 8 elements of order 3. So this group 120 elements of order 11, 8 elements of order 3. Thus we have 129 elements. So we left 3 elements, with which we can construct only one sylow-subgroup. So it has to be unique. Thus G is not simple.

HENCE GROUP OF ORDER 132 IS NOT SIMPLE.

On static system, we have to use 3 coordinates (x, y, z) for finding the position of any particle in 3-D. In dynamic system, we use total 6 coordinates for finding the position and momentum simultaneously. If there are 'N' number of particles, then the total coordinates are 6N.

The state of a system becomes when we know the details and hence is fully satisfied at a particular time by a certain number of generalized coordinates and equal number of generalized momenta. These coordinates are governed by Hamilton's Canonical equation of motion.
